Poetry for Children: The Signal Award 1979-2001

The Signal Poetry Award essays appeared in each May issue of the journal Signal Approaches to Children's Books. The award recipient received a small prize at the time, but the main reward was being accorded first place in a substantial written overview of a year's publishing of poetry for children.

The present collection of these essays is produced to honour the poets again and to provide an accumulated record of what was being written for Signal at the time their collections and anthologies were published. Over more than two decades, this record covers hundreds of books.

The value of the collection as a resource is augmented by its 25-page index, the main-title entries of which include the books' original details: author, illustrator, number of pages and publisher.
